

ALUMNI DAY AT THE UNIVERSITY

Prof. J. R. Wheeler Nominated
As a Member of the Board of Trustees.

LUNCHEON AND SPEECHES

Medical Alumni Enjoy Banquet,
Classes Observe Anniversaries—Reunions End
a Busy Day.

Alumni day at the University of Vermont Tuesday was a record-breaker. An unusually large number of alumni were present to take part in all the festivities, and class reunions played a more important part than ever before. There was excitement almost every minute for the anniversary classes, and the class of 1889 besides having the largest twenty-fifth reunion ever held at the university gave future alumni days a boost by giving a cup to be offered annually by the alumni to the class which displays the most original costumes and stunts in the frolics of alumni day.

The alumni breakfast was a larger event than ever. It was held in the gymnasium at noon, about 315 alumni, wives and children, instructors, seniors, and friends being present. The Rev. E. C. Bass, '89, president of the associate alumni, presided. The Rev. Dr. Joseph Torrey, '82, invoked the divine blessing. As soon as the breakfast was well started, the classes thundered out their cheers from all sides of the room, cheering themselves, the other classes, and all joining in a big demonstration for President Benton. Professor Nathan P. Merrill, and Professor Archibald L. Daniels, who retire this year, were loudly cheered. Soon the class of 1904 disembarked at the door from their float and marched twice around the room in picturesque costume, with a battery of noise-making instruments. The class then took its place at the north side of the room, and contributed their share to the general excitement and pandemonium.

After the luncheon, there were speeches, the first speaker introduced by the Rev. E. C. Bass being President G. P. Benton. The latter expressed his pleasure at such a large and enthusiastic gathering of sons and daughters of the university. He proposed to announce two other speakers, one, Shō Nemoto, '89, of Tokio, who he said would speak through a letter which President Benton received from him. In this letter Shō Nemoto expressed his deep regret at not being able to attend the commencement and his 15th reunion, on account of a special session of Parliament, of which he is a member. As a token of remembrance and gratitude to the university for the great services rendered him, he enclosed a check for $250 for the university. This letter was received with cheers for Shō Nemoto, led by Dr. G. Y. Bliss, '89. The second speaker, President Benton said, would talk by means of his picture, which was held up for view. This was a picture of Dr. J. B. Angell, president of the university from 1900 to 1913. President Benton spoke of seeing him at his home at Ann Arbor, Mich., a short time ago. Although 84 years old, he still takes a keen interest in all Vermont affairs and doings. President Benton expressed the wish that the picture of all the presidents of the university, from President Saunders to President Buckingham, be collected and hung somewhere in the college buildings. In closing, he thanked the Alumni association for its hearty cooperation. Two years ago, he said, there was a deficit of $10,000, but now, thanks to Treasurer Smith, there is a little surplus on hand. A chapel and commons, he said, were particularly needed, and he expressed the hope that they might be had in the near future. He said that the U. V. M. was sure to be an inspiration to the future as it has been in the past.

CHANGE IN COMMENCEMENT DATE NOT FAVORED.

At this point the proposed changing of commencement from the fourth to the third week of June was brought up. John J. Allen spoke against the motion for two reasons: It would throw more work on the faculty if they attempted to cover the same amount of work in a week less time, and it would be impossible to obtain a large number of alumni at commencement as now. Later the motion was brought up again, but laid on the table.

FIELD SECRETARY RICH.

The field secretary, L. L. Rich, spoke for a few minutes. He said the activities of the field secretary, so far as the university is concerned, consist in seeking to complete the endowment fund begun ten years ago, now one-half complete. He said a greater degree of effort was needed, and more co-operation, instead of individual work. We should see that the interests of the university are advanced, a definite organization formed. We should take seriously our relation to the university and do our best to draw funds to the institution. Through the institution is the opportunity to develop the highest opportunity possible.

D. G. MOORE.

The chairman next called on D. G. Moore, '88, one of the oldest living graduates. He said he believed in the university and its ideals. He said he was unable to express his feelings at coming back once more. In looking back, he could see all the past opportunities offered by the college. Although he had been out of college a long while, he said, his love and friendship for the university were as warm as ever, and he would continue to stand by it as long as strength and life should last.

DEAN H. C. TINKHAM.

Dean Tinkham of the Medical College was the next speaker. Not long ago, he said, the automobile was never expected by some people to become a practical machine for use. The same was said of the flying machine, and the Panama canal was thought by some to be impractical and foolish. However, these remarks were made by persons who knew nothing about the affairs or the results to be gained by them. The fact that the automobile, the flying machine and the canal were not based on facts. More recently it has been said that it was impossible to support a medical college here in Vermont. This was said by a man who knew nothing about the practical conditions here. The school has been criticized especially, he said, on account of the clinical teaching, but now it met all requirements, with one exception, the question of finance, which will soon be met. He said of the 24 Vermont men in ten years who sought medical education outside of the State, only one came back to Vermont to practice. We will see, he said, if it happens thus when there isn't any medical institution here, but the time has not yet come when there will be none.

MRS. JESSIE WRIGHT WHITCOMB.

The next speaker was Jessie Wright Whitcomb, '84. This was her first time back since her graduation, she said, but she remembered all events in her college life, especially the splendidly unconditional way in which Vermont opened her doors to girls. This intellectual freedom was worth more than books. She compared the open doors to the women students in her college life to the open doors in the high wall leading up from the sea at Madeira, through which beautiful gardens and the sea could be seen. Give to a girl four years of such open doors and her subsequent life will be a distinct benefit to the community.

D. J. BOYNTON.

D. J. Boynton of the class of 1894 was the next speaker. He observed the changes in modern dress and quoted the poem of a bachelor friend, E. H. Redfield, of Springfield, written to the rhythm of Edgar A. Poe's Raven, as follows:

I have seen her oft before,
As she passed by my door,
Light as air,
With a light and graceful step,
If once seen, you'll never forget
Like a Bear.

And she wears a hobbie gown,
Big end up and small end down,
Round her feet,
And the echo of her tread
Is still running through my head—
After I have gone to bed.

I can't sleep,
She is going to the show,
Where the pictures come and go
About the pictures come and go.

And I don't suppose she knows
She's the show of all the shows
I have seen.

On her head she wears no hat,
But instead, a ribbon flat,
And this phantom, strange and queer,
Is still passing very clear.

Through my mind.

Now in all this rhapsody
There is nothing, 'pon my soul,
More than a dream unkind;
But if I should ever see
Such a thing a chasing me
I shall climb the tallest tree
I can find.

F. D. HOYT.

Frank D. Hoyt, also a '84 man, said that if anyone thought because he had been out of college fifty years he was an old man, he was mistaken. He told of the professors of his time, and of his classmates, saying that more in proportion to the size of the class went to the Civil War than any other class in college. At that time there was one building, the old mill, and the campus was a pasture. Since then the college has grown and prospered. When the class of 1914 comes back in 50 years, if they have prospered, let them thank the college.

REV. G. Y. BLISS.

The Rev. Dr. G. Y. Bliss, '89, thanked President Benton for the 45 members of the class present, for the great success of the week. He suggested that something should be done to bring the graduates back. At Union, Yale and other colleges, the alumni appeared in costumes on their 5th, 10th, 15th, 20th and 25th anniversaries. He said that at their breakfast in the morning, a subscription was raised to buy a suitable cup, which should go to the class presenting the largest number back and the best appearance. This should be given to the alumni association. It was accepted with a rising vote of thanks to the class.

J. C. SHERBURNE.

John C. Sherburne, '94, the first Rhodes scholar, told of the auspicious circumstance surrounding his graduation, which being the centenary of the college, he was asked if there was any place with more beautiful surroundings, or with a better college than the U. V. M. He expressed the wish that the attendance at college not be over 500 boys, with some girls, as too many spoil the chance of developing individual initiative. It is a small college, but there are those who love it.

G. L. GREENE.

G. L. Greene, '96, spoke on the extension of the Agricultural College. He said everything had taken on the appearance of progress. The State was backing the Agricultural College and the Agricultural College in turn kept the people in touch with it. If we stick together, he said, there is no fear for the growth of the university.

CLASS OF 1914 RECEIVED.

The formal reception of the class of 1914 into the alumni body followed. The speaker told of four duties which should be followed: Arrange joint class contribution; remember the university in your prayers and praises; keep up your organization and return often. D. W. Howe of the graduating class responded. He said that the class felt they were not graduating out of the university. He told of the part into the university. He told of the class fund project. He thanked the alumni for the generous offer and invitation to the luncheon, and said the class was glad to be able to share the university's past and hoped that they would prove worthy additions to the alumni.

Judge Whitcomb of Dartmouth spoke briefly, saying that he was very glad to be present and expressed his belief that the support of the alumni was due to the support of the alumni.

ASSOCIATE ALUMNI

Prof. J. R. Wheeler Nominated for the Position of Trustee.

The annual meeting of the Associate Alumni of the University of Vermont was called to order at 11:30 o'clock on Tuesday morning at the college chapel by the Rev. Dr. E. C. Bass of Providence, R. I., the president. The record of the last annual meeting was read by Charles E. Allen, secretary, and on motion, it was approved. The report of the treasurer, H. G. Fuller, was read and the same was accepted and ordered on file. It showed a balance on hand of $29.95 with all bills presented paid.

The Rev. Dr. J. E. Goodrich, chairman of the obituary committee, presented the list of alumni deceased, 1913-1914, as follows:

1840—Rev. Charles Cutler Torrey, born Salem, Mass., 4 January, 1827, died Andover, Mass., 14 August, 1913.

1871—Prof. Charles Simeon Denison, Sc. D., born Gambier, Ohio, 12 July, 1819, died Ann Arbor, Mich., 20 July, 1913.

1886—Rev. Samuel Henry Bishop, B. D., born Toronto, Ont., 1 May, 1864, died St. Luke's hospital, New York city, 30 May, 1914.

1890—Loyal Elmhurst Sherwin, born Chester, Vt., 16 July, 1869, died Chester, 4 August, 1913.

1894—Abel Hodges Tracy, born Danbridge, Vt., 9 August, 1869, died Utica, N. Y., 23 December, 1913.

1898—William Silas Bean, born North Troy, Vt., 6 April, 1877, died Newport, Vt., 31 July, 1913.

1899—Mrs. Mabel (Nelson) Jacobs, born Burlington, Vt., 27 August, 1875, died New York city, 19 July, 1913.

1900—Henry Ward Beecher, born Boston, Mass., 19 April, 1855, died at hospital in Madison, Wis., 2 September, 1913.

1902—John Byron Raymore, born Cambridge, Vt., 16 November, 1888, died Cambridge, 30 April, 1914.

1913—Harold Story Batchelder, born Burlington, Vt., 6 October, 1891, died Pittsburgh, Pa., 10 January, 1914.

Prof. Goodrich announced that he had prepared some two hundred additional sketches of deceased alumni which he proposed to add to the notices of those deceased during the past year. On motion of C. E. Allen he was requested to do so, with the sincerest thanks of the associate alumni for his loyal interest in the welfare of alma mater.

The following statement was presented by Irving L. Rich of Boston, Mass., the alumni field secretary.

The representatives of the following alumni associations met this day at Phillips Library to prepare a resolution to be presented to this meeting of the associate alumni, based upon certain resolutions adopted by the New England Alumni association at its meeting in Boston on March 29, 1914: New York Alumni association, Merton C. Robbins; Chicago Alumni association, Alvin M. Tyler; Vermont State Alumni association, Guy V. Bailey; Warren R. Austin, associate alumni; Edward C. Bass, Dr. F. K. Jackson; Eastern New York Alumni association, Henry C. Pettit; Harry P. Hudson; New England Alumni association, Irving L. Rich.

The meeting voted to present the following resolution:

Resolved, That the associate alumni appoint a committee to be known as the alumni commencement committee. This committee shall consist of a chairman and a secretary, both to be residents of Burlington and to be elected annually by the associate alumni, one member of the faculty to be appointed by the president of the university, and one member from each alumni association to be appointed by its president.

The objects and powers of this committee shall be to arrange and execute plans for the celebration of alumni day during commencement including reunions of classes every third, fifth, tenth, fifteenth, etc., anniversary, and to provide for all the detail thereof, all at the expense of the various alumni associations.

On motion the resolution was unanimously adopted. C. E. Lamb of Lawrence, L. I., moved that a committee of three be appointed by the president to nominate a committee of officers for the ensuing year, including the names of two alumni to take the place of those who retire this year from the committee on the nomination of alumni trustees, and the names of the chairman and secretary of the alumni commencement committee of the resolution offered by Mr. Rich. The motion was adopted and Messrs. C. E. Lamb, H. B. Outley and A. G. Whittier were appointed such committee. The meeting was then adjourned to the gymnasium, to be completed in connection with the alumni breakfast. After the conclusion of the breakfast, the business meeting was resumed.

The report of the committee on candidates for alumni trustee was read by the secretary. The result of the canvass was as follows:

Ballots cast 731
Ballots defective 10

Ballots counted 721

Of this number James Rignall Wheeler of New York city received 511, and was declared the nominee of the alumni.

Edwin W. Lawrence of Rutland received 207 and Horace K. Tenney of Chicago received 107.

The committee on the nomination of officers reported the following, who were declared to be elected on the deposit of a ballot by the secretary:

President, the Rev. Walter H. Cambridge of Southboro, Mass.

Vice-president, Prof. George Dewey Benedict of Providence, R. I.

Secretary, Charles E. Allen of Burlington, Vt.

Treasurer, Henry G. Fuller of Burlington, Vt.

Executive committee, Prof. G. H. Burrows, L. L. Rich, A. G. Whittier, Dr. Lyman Allen, H. L. Ward.

Obituary committee, the Rev. Dr. J. E. Goodrich, the Rev. Dr. G. Y. Bliss, W. B. Gates and H. L. Ward.

Broast committee, G. H. Burrows, M. L. Powell, D. A. Stone and Mrs. H. E. Gray.

Advisory committee on athletics, Dr. W. H. Emery, E. N. Sanctuary, and H. B. Shaw.

To serve on committee to nominate alumni trustee, Henry B. Shaw and Merton C. Robbins.

To serve on alumni commencement committee, Frank R. Wells and Levi P. Smith.

The following communication was received from the university committee on public ceremonies, but no action was taken.

The committee of the university on public ceremonies requests the Associate Alumni to consider the following proposal with reference to the time of holding commencement, and, if agreeable, to record the sentiment of the members of the association present at this meeting upon this question:

It is the belief of the committee that it would be wise to hold commencement on the second day of the third week in June, instead of as at present on the last Wednesday. There would be no great difficulty in arranging the university schedule to provide for this change, and the many business engagements which now compel the undergraduates to leave Burlington before commencement could easily be met without necessitating the early departure. This larger attendance of the students would obviously be an advantage.

The weather records for the past eleven years have been scrutinized and tabulated by the local forecaster with the conclusion that the weather conditions in the third and fourth weeks can be discovered.

This recommendation has been passed upon favorably by the university senate, referred to the trustees, and by them referred to the alumni associations at the various centers. Through oversight the question was not brought to the attention of the associations, and is therefore, with the approval of the president of the university, now referred to the Associate Alumni.

By order of the committee.

J. C. SHERBURNE, chairman.

The Rev. Dr. Bliss, in speaking for the class of 1889, announced that the class had voted to provide a silver cup for the association, to be held in trust by the treasurer of the association, for the following purpose, namely: That upon the cup shall be inscribed annually the name of the class keeping the 5th, 10th, 15th, 20th or 25th reunion of said class, that appears at the alumni breakfast and commencement day in the most attractive costume; the decision to be left to the president, secretary and treasurer of the association, until different arrangements shall be made. On motion of the Rev. Dr. W. B. Brownell the gift was accepted, with thanks. The meeting then adjourned.

MEDICAL ALUMNI.

Business Meeting, Banquet, Speeches—Neurological Report.

The medical alumni banquet was held Tuesday at the medical college. About 65 were present. President A. L. Bingham of Williston presided and the following made speeches: Dr. John French of Millford, Mass., Dr. A. P. A. King of Washington, D. C., Dr. C. A. Woodard of this city, Dr. Samuel Lloyd of New York city, Dr. P. E. Clark and Dr. H. C. Tinkham of this city, President G. L. Steele of the medical seniors, Dr. A. J. Golden of Minneapolis, and Dr. J. D. Tanner of this city. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Dr. W. S. Vincent, '91; secretary, Dr. C. W. Jackson, '84; J. M. French, '91; A. J. Golden, '74; O. G. Skegney, '81; E. H. Hackett, '84; M. E. Varney, '89; secretary-treasurer, Dr. E. K. Jackson, '90; executive committee, Drs. Robert Maynard, '11; J. A. Archambault, '03; E. H. Buttolph, '98; Benjamin Allen, '98; Charles C. Jackson, '91; J. N. Perrin, '03; F. K. Jackson, '03; H. Parmenter, '02. The following members have died during the past year:

'62, Edwin A. Kemp, died at his home in Londondale, R. I. June 12, 1913, aged 89 years.

'66, Edwin A. Bartlett, for 43 years a specialist in diseases of the eye and ear at Milwaukee, for 28 years surgeon for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, emeritus professor of ophthalmology and otology in the medical department of Marquette University. For several years was connected with the Milwaukee Public Museum. He died at his home September 11, 1913, aged 74.

'68, Aaron M. Larkin, died at Northwood, N. Y. August 21, 1913, aged 71 years.

'79, James B. Morrill of Exton, Md., died in Baltimore, of carcinoma of the stomach, March 8, 1914, aged 55.

'79, M. J. Labelle, Elizabethtown, N. Y., died from heatstroke June 30, 1913.

'80, Jno. W. Staples, once president of the New Hampshire Medical society, trustee of Proctor Academy, Andover, died in his private hospital at Franklin, N. H., of cerebral hemorrhage, December 11, 1913, aged 58.

'80, Fred P. Gale, died of heart failure at his home in Plainfield, Vt., September 21, 1913, aged 50 years. He was born in Plainfield May 5, 1863, was educated in the Plainfield schools, Barre Academy and at New Marlboro, Mass. He began the study of medicine with the late Dr. Laselle of Plainfield, after which he entered the medical department of the University of Vermont from which he graduated in 1880. He located at Cabot, Vt., where he remained for eight years. On account of ill health he left Vermont for a warmer climate and located at Port Payne, Ala., where he practiced for eight years. In 1897 he returned to his native town of Plainfield. In 1900 he was married to Mary A. Novens of Cabot, Vt. Although for many years Dr. Gale suffered from poor health, he had a large practice and was well and favorably known in his vicinity. He held many important offices, among which are the following: Past Master of Green Mountain Lodge of Masons of Cabot, health officer at Port Payne, served on the school board and was school superintendent for many years at Plainfield. He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Ellen Gale, a nurse at Montpelier, Vt.

'81, Henry H. Lee, died April 4, 1914, of cancer pancreas at his home in Wells River, Vt., aged 56 years. Dr. Lee was born at Richmond, P. Q., November 3, 1857, the son of Edward J. and Elizabeth P. Lee. He received his academic education in his native place. He then entered the medical department of the University of Vermont, from which institution he was graduated in 1881. After graduating he went directly to Wells River, where he began the practice of medicine and by hard and conscientious work established a large practice, especially in surgery and consultations. Dr. Lee married Miss Kate Bingham December 28, 1883, who survives him together with their children. He was appointed an assistant surgeon in the Vermont regiment that went to Chattanooga, Tenn., in the Spanish-American War in 1898. He spent two years in the Philippines as assistant surgeon in the regular army. He served as a member of the Vermont State Medical society and the State tuberculosis commission. He was a member of the Military Order of Foresters and a director of the Wells River Savings bank.

'83, Olan Gadzabank, also a clergyman, formerly of Boston, died at Hannon, N. Y., May, 1914, aged 76.

'84, Albert H. Phelps, died at his home in Glen Falls, N. Y., June 14, 1913, aged 60.

'90, Alvin H. Wright, died at San Francisco, Cal., March 13, 1913, aged 42.

'90, Herbert M. Clapp of Stratford, Conn., died in Florida, December 12, 1913, aged 52.

'91, Walter J. Pennell, died at Auburn, Me., October 29, 1913, aged 59.

'91, Philip H. Fitzsimmons, died at Cambridge, Mass., April 4, 1914, aged 56 years.

COMMONS CLUB ALUMNI ASSOCIATION FORMED.

The senior members of the U. V. M. Commons club and the non-fraternity alumni present at commencement held a joint meeting Tuesday and formed a Commons Club Alumni association. Its purpose will be to keep a continuing hand on the undergraduate organization and to give them financial and other assistance. Officers for the year 1914-15 were elected as follows: President, Jasper O. Draffin, '13, of Burlington; secretary, Clarence H. Adams, '12, of Rutland; undergraduate secretary, Morrie H. Taylor, '15, of Johnson; executive committee, John B. Norton, '13, of Amherst, Mass.; Clarence W. Minkel, '14, of Whitinsville, Mass.; Milton B. Morrow, '14, of Arlington.

PRESIDENT'S RECEPTION.

President and Mrs. Benton received in their home from four to six. The reception was attended by the trustees, alumni, faculty, seniors and visiting friends. Miss Mary Lyman and Miss Helen Benton introduced the guests. Mrs. Mabel E. Stone and Mrs. F. W. Sears served, assisted by young ladies of the university. Refreshments were served on the lawn. Romeo's orchestra furnished music.

CLASS REUNIONS.

A number of class reunions were held during the day. The class of 1899 celebrated its 15th anniversary in a memorable way. A breakfast was held at the Hotel Vermont in the morning. Forty-two were present, a number which broke all records for a 15th reunion of the university. There were 16 graduates, 8 non-graduates and 21 members of the class family. The class was also present in full strength at the alumni breakfast. At 4:20 the party took autos to Grand Isle, where they spent the evening as guests of one of the class, F. A. Alden, at his hotel, the Island Villa. Present at the breakfast at Hotel Vermont were Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Alibon, H. M. Dean, Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Kilborn, Charles L. Barstow, Mrs. J. F. Downing, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. A. Beebe, and two daughters, the Rev. and Mrs. G. Y. Bliss and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. C. S. Brigham, Mr. and Mrs. George Graves, H. M. Johnson and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. White and daughter, A. B. Gilbert, Arthur T. Stratton, E. S. Isham, Dr. W. H. Merriam, Mr. and Mrs. Max L. Powell and two sons, the Rev. H. F. Quimby, George H. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Stone and Mrs. Edward K. Sohier. A cabaret from the class from Mandia, was head at the dinner at Island Villa.

The class of 1904 was very much in evidence. They appeared in the morning dressed in white duck suits with large neckties, and prominently displaying their class colors, blue and red. Fourteen had breakfast at the Van Ness House. The old Van Ness tally-ho furnished transportation for a pleasant ride about town, a large class banner being prominently displayed. The class all carried noisy frying pans and horns. They arrived late at the alumni luncheon and created a furor of excitement when they arrived with their noise and youthful jollity. They also attended the ball game in the afternoon. Professor and Mrs. S. F. Emerson entertained the class together with all the trustees, professors and college officers, who were present while the class was in college. At the reception in their home from six to eight about 150 were present.
